Witness told Mr. Barry that the or form; that the N. A. M. did not have money enough to buy them. In the course of his examination

Colonel Mulhall identified letter after letter dealing with the unsuccessful campaign which he and Marshall Cushing, then secretary of the N. A. M., had waged in the Sixth Maryland district against Colonel George A. Pearre, Republican representative in congress. Another interesting item which the letters developed was a transaction with one Joseph Dorsey, colored, editor of a newspaper circulated among the negroes of the district. Dorsey had been given money, so Mulhall said, to assume a friendly attitude toward George Lowndes, editor, who was the anti-Pearre candidate, but after one issue of his newspaper Dorsey had flopped back to the Pearre alignment.

Littlefield Campaign. The scene of Mr. Mulhall's activities was next shifted to the Second Maine district, where a congressional election was to be held Sept. 10, 1906. Mulhall was sent into the district, then represented by Charles E. Littlefield, Republican, with a view to making a fight for Republican success. The American Federation of Labor was fighting Littlefield. Mulhall told about the use of whisky as a persuader for votes and related that in the town of Rockland, Me., he had on election day charge of a local hall in the town, where throughout the period the polls were open he took care of 23 Democratic voters. Mulhall charged that he had bought Dr. G. L. Crockett of Rockland, a Democratic campaign speaker, for $500, and Dr. Crockett, after persuasion, had made a rattling campaign speech denunciatory of Samuel Gompers, who at one time had been his patient. Mulhall related that the election of Littlefield had cost $60,000. The greater portion of this money, he said, was raised in eastern states from meming evidence so strong that convictions will be easy.

MEMOIR. Laura Bell, daughter of L. L. and Nancy J. Rose was born near Frankfort, Ross county, Ohio, April 26th 1860, and died, July 5th, 1913 her home in Washington C. was united in marriage with William A. Sanders December 7th, 1882. To remaining three, Austin L., Ella and Frank, are left with the husband and two grandchildren to mourn the loss of a most loving and devoted mother of six children, all of whom preceded her to her heavenly home. Early in life at about twelve years of age, she united with the M E, church at South Salem and was an active work. er in the church at that place. At the time of her marriage she came to Washington to live and transferred her membership to Grace M. E. church. In later years she became interested in the work of the East End Mission chapel and transferred her membership to the Presbyterian church and has always been a faithful and earnest Christian, and died with the full assurance that she would soon meet her Savior and the many loved ones who have gone on and have e'er now welcomed her home Her one great desire always and above all others was that she might so instruct her children that they would live faithful and helpful lives and so meet her in the better home to which she was going.

She suffered long and patiently. At times when her sufferings were intense she would pray the Heavenly Father to take her home where she would have rest and peace.

Death to her had no terrors; it was simply falling asleep in Jesus. Blessed sleep, from which none ever wake to

The Youngsters and Ice

Just what attraction ice holds for the youngster Be to the faltering, an urge; has never been specifically defined, but that ice attracts the children like the magnate attracts steel all will concede

Did you ever notice the flock of youngsters, both boys and girls gather around the ice wagon when it makes its stops on the rounds while delivering ice to the consumers.

The streets will apparently be deserted and not a youngster in sight but as soon as the cumbersome ice wagon comes to a halt and before the man on the rear of the wagon succeeds in getting his wide tooth saw well started on its chip extracting journey there will be a flock of youngsters spring up, all asking for a piece of ice. If refused, as soon as the man's back is turned each youngster will grab a piece of ice and scurry off all by himself to enjoy it. They run from and after each other for all the world like a brood of young chickens.

Why do they do it?

That's easy enough to answer.

Nine people out of every ten will answer, "It's because the weather is hot and the ice cold. There little bodies are tortured with heat and they are frantic for something cold."

That theory might work as an answer too, but for the fact that in zero weather you never see a boy or girl pass an icicle they can reach without pulling it down and licking it, even when the weather is so cold that their tongues and lips stick

Youngsters will carry ice, eat ice and run after ice in winter as well as in summer. Clear or cloudy, smooth or rough, pure or impure, makes no difference to the healthy boys and girls. They want ice and want it badly, any time and every time, any kind and every kind.

Nature for some reason has created a bond between ice and the healthy youngster.

No one can watch them fight for it under any and all con ditions without concluding that there is a strong appetite for ice implanted by nature in every healthy lad or lass.

Good Movement Gone Wrong

The request, worded in the most flowery language, to President Wilson that he use his best efforts to induce Governor Cex to investigate the purchase of the Perry Memorial site at Put-in-Bay promises to be much wider than was asked for.

The man who addressed the communication to President Wilson claimed that the sum awarded his sister by a jury of Portage county men in a suit by the Perry Centennial commission to condemn the land for a monument site, was only about half as much as it should have been.

Just where the authority of the President in the matter comes in is not just exactly clear. But be that as it may, recent developments indicate that Governor Cox is already making an investigation of the whole Perry Centennial celebration movement and the disclosures so far developed are anything but pleasing to either the chief executive or to the people of News reports seem to indicate that the whole affair has been so beseiged by those who want graft that the commission is thoroughly disgusted and some of the members threaten to resign as soon as they can arrange to do so without Mother Says Saxo Salve Made Her hampering seriously the interests of the state.

As an instance of the stripe of the beseigers, it is asserted that when Henry Watherson made his really great address only one hundred and sixty persons listened to him. Thousands however, crowded the saloons and gambling joints that were being operated at full blast.

The whole affair it seems, has degenerated into a csandal of the worst sort. Those in charge of the place are not in with Mrs. E. P. Hook, 224 E. 17th street the spirit of the great movement and care nothing but for the Connersville, Ind. pelf. The visitors, most of them, care for nothing but a riotous

Choose Career to Fit the Boy

By Dr. CHARLES J. PICKETT of New York, Instructor of Vocational Studies For Boys

JOCATIONAL schools aim to send out their graduates with TRAINED, SKILLED HANDS, guided by minds adapted to quick, adequate thinking of the work to be accomplished.

THE PROBLEM OF CHOOSING A CAREER FOR A BOY IS ONE THAT IS SELDOM GIVEN SUFFICIENT STUDY BY PARENTS. VERY OFTEN MUCH MORE ATTENTION IS PAID TO THE SELECTION OF A SUIT OF CLOTHES THAN TO THE SELECTION OF WHAT MAY BECOME A LIFE WORK.

Ordinarily a boy who plans to go to work DROPS INTO THE FIRST HOLE THAT YAWNS BEFORE HIM. In this haphazard way are thousands of boys launched on a sea of business endeavor, and in this way is the ARMY OF DRIFTERS constantly recruited. Is it any wonder that the WORLD IS FULL OF MISFITS? What greater argument for vocational guidance could be advanced? MACKMEN OUTCLASS RIVALS

Philadelphia Has Better Infield, Outfield, Batters and Base Runners. Giants Have Stronger Pitching Staff. Mack Using Clever Methods.

back the Giants' end of the argument. The team is outclassed by the Mackmen in every department but pitching. The Athletics have a better infield, outer garden and catching department than the New Yorkers. They also are heavier hitters, better base

> Mack has handled his pitchers in clever style all season and has resort ed to all kinds of tricks. Here is one he pulled off on Washington recently: Before a recent game Mack had Bender and Plank warming up before the players' bench, indicating that one or the other would pitch. In the meantime, Joe Bush was behind the grandstand loosening up his arm. The Bender-Plank display was for the purpose of drawing Johnson out of Griffith, and it succeeded, but as soon as Johnson had been announced Mack switched to Bush, not wanting to take a chance of having one of his two stars beaten by Johnson, reserving them for an easier game, thus making their games certain victories, is the way he figured.

As it happened, Bush won his game, and, though Bender had to be used at the finish, it left him (Mack) Plank and Bender to be used in the remaining games.

Mack has made remarkable improvement in the work of his young pitchers. None of them are stars, but he has taught them enough to have them formidable for five or six innings anyway, and in that way he is able to win games, for he can let one of his veterans finish the games during the closing innings without affecting their regular turns.

been through. Now, let me see if I can explain something to you. I want to convey my meaning clearly, for I don't want to do anybody an injustice.

"There are ball players who are gamer than others. 'Game' is hardly the word I want, but I can think of no other. What I mean is this: Some ball players are not affected by adversity. A slump does not weigh on their minds. Unfortunately we have too few of that class in our club. We have an overabundance of the players who worry when they fail to hit or field perfectly. That is not to their discredit, for it simply means that they are in earnest In fact, many of them are trying too hard under such conditions.

"In the days of our pennant winning team we had a bunch of hard hitters. great fielders and wonderful base runners. Yet the man whom we depended double value for your money, goes on most in the pinches was a man who never batted .300 in his life-Claude Ritchey. Why? Young American Faces Term In an Italian Dungeon.

HOW HE MURDERED WIFE.

Fight Against Extradition Occasioned International Interest and Threatened to Embroil This Country With Italy-Long Fight at Last Ended.

New York .- Porter Charlton, the young American who killed his bride in their villa at Lake Como, Italy, in June, 1910, and who for three years has successfully fought extradition, has been turned over to the Italian government and will be tried for his crime.

which was relaxed neither day nor face a living death in an Italian dungeon. He had no visitors save his devoted father, Paul Charlton, former United States judge at Porto Rico; his mother and brother and his counsel. The crime for which Charlton must now stand trial created worldwide attention because of his grewsome set ting and the prominence of the slayer's family. The fight against extradition occasioned international interest and country with Italy.

Porter Charlton was a New York bank clerk when he met Mrs. Neville Henry H. Scott, a San Francisco coal the couple were secretly married i Wilmington, Del., in April, 1910. A few days later they sent announcements t their friends and then sailed for Europe on their honeymoon. Letters received by Captain Scott, attached to the belief that the couple were happy and peaceably enjoying themselves. On the morning of June 10 the body of Mrs. Charlton was found by fisher men in a trunk in Lake Como not far from the villa the pair had occupied. An investigation was started by the police of Cernobbio, and a Russian named Constantine Ispolatoff was arrested. When the authorities searched for Charlton be had disappeared. It was at first believed Charlton had met death defending his wife's honor. and the lake was searched for his body. Then it was learned from the proprietor of the Hotel Suisse at Cernobbio that a couple had frequently appeared there and registered as Mr. and Mrs. Potter. They had often quarreled, and on several occasions the woman had been seen weeping. Once the guests heard shricks, and the proprietor found Mrs. Chariton hidden in a closet. Later her husband dragged her to the street, and the proprietor asked the pair to leave his hotel.

These stories turned suspicion upon Charlton, and the police of the entire world were asked to arrest him on sight. None of the detectives assigned to the case was more indefatigable than Captain Scott. He swore to be revenged and obtained a leave of absence. Scott thought his brother-inlaw might be on the Deutschland and was on hand when she docked.

No trace of Charlton was found, and he strolled over to the Prinzess Irene. He had never seen the object of his quest, but a man on the pier answered his description, and he caused his arrest. He had arrived under an assumed name, but admitted his identity when his own name was found stitched inside his laundry bag. He then seemed glad that the strain was over.

At police headquarters be made a written confession, in which he sald that, while his wife was "the best woman in the world," they often quarreled over trivial matters, and she would call him foul names. The night of the murder she went into a temper, and in a daze he struck her with a mallet be had been using to straighten out the leg of a couch. He then placed the mallet and body in a trunk, dragged the trunk from the villa to a small pler and threw it into Lake Como.
